Summary of key findings This provision meets requirements

Through discussion with the childminder, she has a range of policies to support her practice, which she shares with others working in her provision. She has clear processes for assessing and minimising risks in the setting and while on outings. She ensures all staff undertakes first-aid and safeguarding training, to help them appropriately support children and keep them safe.

The childminder has clear plans for setting out the setting with interesting activities that link closely to children's interests and recent experiences, to motivate children and help them develop their skills. She discusses observing children to assess their abilities and identify what they need to learn next. She understands the benefits of working with parents, to help provide a consistent approach for children.

The childminder knows how to promote children's health and well-being. She plans regular experiences for them outdoors and in the local community, to develop their physical skills and their understanding of the world. She has arrangements for providing them with healthy meals and drinks, helping them grow items in her garden and teaching them how to take care of their bodies.

The childminder appreciates the importance of building strong relationships with children, taking time to get to know them and making them feel happy and confident in her provision. She knows how to teach children about behaviour expectations and help them develop their social skills, learning to share, take turns and play cooperatively with each other.

Safeguarding is effective. The childminder regularly updates her safeguarding knowledge. The childminder has a good understanding of her responsibilities for reporting any allegations against herself, or a person living or working at the setting, to the local authority. She has knowledge of wider safeguarding and the signs to look out for.

There were no children in the early years age range present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no early year's children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.
